Part 1. Job

Q: What do you do to make a living?

I am a music teacher. I run my own music studio and I teach students music for a living.

Q: What are your working hours like?

As the majority of my students are primary school and high school students, my work starts at about 3:30 in the afternoon and my last lesson finishes at 9 at night. I think this is very unusual working hours compared with people in other occupations.

Q: What do you like most about your job?

What I like most about my job is the special relationship that I have with my students. As I give one on one lessons, it doesn't take a long time to build a good relationship with a student. To them, I'm not just a teacher, but a mentor and sometimes a friend. I cherish this meaningful relationship and this is what I love most about my job.

Q: What will you be doing in 10 years from now?

Oh, I've never really thought about that. Well, let me think. In 10 years, I think I'll be still teaching students as I love my job as a piano teacher. I want to continue teaching music and I hope I will help my students to enjoy music and reach their full potential as pianists. So, I'm pretty sure I will remain being a music teacher in 10 years.
